

BONDS VOTED FOR BUILDING AT PARK

City Council Authorizes Appropriation of $2,500 for New Shelter House.

REPORT ON ALLEY IN BLOCK K

Committee Appointed to Investigate Drainage of Surface Water from John Street.

Issuance of bonds for $2,500 for the construction of a shelter house at Shields Park was voted by the city council at the regular meeting Thursday night. The ordinance providing for an appropriation of $3,000 was introduced four weeks ago and when it was read for the second time Thursday night Murray moved to amend it to read $2,500 instead of $3,000. His amendment carried by unanimous vote. On motion of Steinwedel the rules were suspended and on motion of Ahlbrand the ordinance as amended was passed.

City Attorney Kasting recommended that in order that the building of the house might not be delayed that the council authorize the city clerk to advertise for bids. The proposals will be received in four weeks. The plans and specifications will be finally approved within a few days so that the prospective bidders can have ample time to file their bids. The ordinance provides that the appropriation shall be raised by a bond issue. The council will later decide in what denominations the bonds will be issued and what rate of interest they will bear. The advertisement for the sale of the bonds will be made later.

The shelter house was included in the recommendations of the citizens' park committee. It is understood that it will be fire-proof and built in such a way that it can be enclosed and floored later if desired.

Mayor Ross was absent from the meeting last night and the councilmen named J. H. Andrews to preside.

Chairman Rockstroh of the board of works, stated that several residents on Central avenue had objected to the drainage of the surface water from John street into the gutters on Central avenue and asked for permission for T. J. Clark, who was present, to speak. Mr. Clark said that Central avenue had all the water that the gutters could carry away without bringing in that from John street and thought that other arrangements ought to be made to carry it away.

At the request of Rockstroh, City Engineer Rights explained that the natural drainage of John street was towards Central avenue and that no other disposition of the surface water could be made until a new sewer was constructed. On motion of Steinwedel, the chairman was asked to appoint a committee to make an investigation and report to the next board of works meeting. Chairman Andrews appointed Rock-

Fire, believed to have originated in a stock room, early today totally destroyed several buildings in the business district of Mitchell. The loss is heavy, according to reports here. The flames swept half a block of the B. & O. S-W. tracks. The two bank buildings were saved by the heavy fire walls.

Ware rooms containing stock of jewelry, owned by Harry Clemens, formerly of Brownstown, and Efron's Clothing store, were destroyed. Both firms were heavy losers, it is reported here. A building occupied by a meat market, two others, and several warehouses were destroyed.

STREET TRAFFIC SHOWS INCREASE

Count on Chestnut Street Shows 5,247 Pedestrians and Vehicles During Twelve Hours.

COUNT MADE MARCH 5, 1913

Traffic on Chestnut Street is Many Times Greater than on Walnut Street, Report Shows.

That the traffic on the local streets is steadily increasing—indicating the growth of the city and a greater volume of business—is shown by a comparison of a count made Thursday of the number of pedestrians, motor vehicles and other conveyances that crossed the Baltimore & Ohio South-western tracks on Chestnut street with that made March 5, 1913. The figures are supplied by George Kramer, crossing watchman, who was instructed by E. W. Scheer, division superintendent, to compile the report.

Kramer's report shows that from 6 o'clock Thursday morning until 6 o'clock at night a total of 5,247 pedestrians, automobiles, wagons and other vehicles crossed the track. On March 5, 1913, a count was made and the total number of persons and vehicles crossing the tracks at the same point was 4,067. While the gain is not great, it is recalled that the conditions were entirely different. In 1913 the count was made while school was in session and quite a number of the pedestrians recorded were school children. At this time school is not in session. March 5, 1913, was a clear day, it is recalled by the watchman, while Thursday was partly cloudy. Kramer says that the traffic on the street Thursday was hardly normal.

During the twelve hours Thursday that the count was made 4,067 persons crossed the track. Besides this number a total of 282 automobiles, 143 buggies, 353 wagons and 362 bicycles were also counted. During the day sixteen trains and twenty-four interurban cars were recorded. The number of traction cars is larger than in 1913 on account of the increasing freight service on the road.

That there is many times as much traffic on Chestnut street as on Walnut street is shown by a comparison of the report filed by Charles J. Colemeyer, watchman on Walnut street. According to the latter's report for June 6, two days before Kramer made his count, 784 pedestrians and vehicles crossed the tracks on that street. Sixty automobiles were counted and eighty-five buggies, 125 wagons and 514 pedestrians were included in the count. Colemeyer says that the traffic on the day he made his count was exceptionally light. He says that traffic at his crossing is heavier during the winter months on account of the large number of school children going to and coming from the high school building. He thinks that the report filed by him does not show the average amount of traffic on the street and intends to make a new count later.

At stated intervals the Baltimore & Ohio Company requires its watchmen all over the division to make a count of this kind. From the reports filed a table showing the number of persons crossing the tracks all over the division or in any city can be easily compiled. The count taken by Kramer and Colemeyer, however, was not a part of a division count and none of the other watchmen were required to keep a record.

SHELTER HOUSE PLANS ANNOUNCED

Structure to be of Steel Construction With Open Sides—Work to Start Soon.

MAY BE COMPLETED IN JULY

Many Favor Larger and More Permanent Building, Suitable for All Occasions.

According to the plans that have been prepared for the citizen's park committee, as announced today by A. H. Ahlbrand, a member of the committee, the shelter house to be erected in Shields Park will be an open side, steel constructed building, with a slate composition roof and steel lattice work around the top. The structure will be 60 by 120 feet in size, and will seat from 1500 to 1800 people. It is to be constructed on the knoll in the east end of the park, giving a natural incline for seating arrangements. It is understood that the plans are such that side walls and a floor may be installed at a later date. The estimated cost of the structure is in the neighborhood of $3,000. The bond issue voted by the council last night calls for only $2,500. This was done in order to hold down the bonded indebtedness of the city to the lowest figure possible, and it is understood that the balance of the cost will be appropriated from the general fund.

There has been considerable sentiment for a larger and more permanent structure, one that would seat from 2,000 to 2,500 people, which would be ample for any large meeting or convention that might come to the city in the future. Friends of this sort of a structure pointed out today that since the city was to assume the cost of the building, that it might as well be constructed in such a way that it would answer the needs of the city for years to come. This could be done, they claim, for a slightly larger expenditure, and a building erected with side walls, floor, stage and proper seating arrangements which could be used for public gatherings of all kinds.

Directors of the chautauqua association today stated that the cost of erecting the big tent which is used for the annual assembly, inclusive of rent, freight, etc., was about $150. They indicated that they would be willing to pay a like amount in rent

DELEGATES AWAIT THE FIRST BALLOT

Hitchcock Believes That Hughes Will be Nominated on Third Ballot Late Today.

VARIOUS PREDICTIONS MADE

Favorite Sons' Managers Believe Hughes' Strength Will Fail After Second Ballot.

(By Perry Arnold, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago, June 9—Predictions that Justice Hughes and Theodore Roosevelt will be nominated by the Republican and Bull Moose convention before the day is over were freely made by leaders representing these men. The predictions regarding Hughes were freely disputed by the "favorite sons" allies.

At 9:30 o'clock this morning Frank Hitchcock announced this conviction that Hughes would be nominated on the third ballot late today. "On the first ballot the delegates will register 'their favorite sons' complimentary votes, but from then on there will be big defections to the Hughes banner with each call of states, he said.

Unless the pussy footers among the progressives do the super human thing and hold their "direct action" advocates in line, Roosevelt will be nominated.

This became certain at 10 o'clock when the direct action men learned from their committee that there had been a deadlock over Roosevelt. That the prospects over an agreement of a candidate were not completely shattered by the conference deadlock was the opinion of some when it was learned the conferees agreed upon practically identical reports to their respective conventions.

Senator Smoot went to the Auditorium at 9:35 this morning for a conference with one of the Bull Moose leaders.

Hughes must be nominated on the second ballot or he can't survive, according to the belief of the "favorite son" managers.

By United Press.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The Progressive National convention recessed at 1 o'clock this afternoon until 3 o'clock without having taken any definite action. After the report of the conference committee had been read it was announced the committee was still in service and a request was made upon the Republicans for another meeting.

A feature of the session was a tremendous ovation given Senator Borah, who recently withdrew from the Republican nomination, Borah, who was one of the Republican peace conferees, visited the Progressive convention.

"I am over here to get a little inspiration," he said. "I have not left the Republican party and I am not here in an official capacity."

Borah took the platform and was greeted with an "Now come on home."

Borah made a hit by referring to Roosevelt. "It was pretty well known," he said, "that I have a deep seated admiration for your great leader, Theodore Roosevelt." Order was restored after four minutes. "There is no doubt at all but that you want Teddy," he said.

By some this action by Borah was considered as an attempt to test his own popularity. He had been put forward as one of those who could unite the party.

Borah spoke of T. R. as "a master of our international problems."

"If your convention and mine should agree on your great leader there would be no more enthusiastic supporter of Roosevelt than myself," he said.

ROOT'S NAME IS PRESENTED

Governor Willis, of Ohio, Places Name of Senator Theodore Burton Before Convention.

(By Perry Arnold, United Press Correspondent.)

Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—Republican hosts this afternoon cheered the name of Justice Hughes for twenty solid minutes in the first old fashioned Republican convention outburst that has featured the present meeting. The outburst followed Governor Whitman's nominating speech.

The convention plainly indicated the relative popularity of Taft and Roosevelt by giving the former five minutes of noise to one and one-half minutes of scattered hand clapping for the latter when their names were incidentally mentioned.

After Nicholas Murray Butler had nominated Elihu Root, characterizing him as "the greatest statesman of all time, the delegates gave Root fourteen minutes of riotous noise.

A demonstration lasting several minutes followed the nomination of John W. Weeks, United States senator from Massachusetts.

Dupont was placed in nomination by Representative Miller.

At 2:46 Calhoun began the speech to nominate Lawrence Y. Sherman, of Illinois.

The session was a field day of oratory. One by one the states were called and the favorite sons held up for inspection. Governor Willis, of Ohio, nominated Theodore Burton of that state.

The Republicans heard the report of the conference committee with scant applause. The committee was continued in service.

Nominating Hughes, Governor Whitman reviewed the troubled international situation recalling "insults to the flag, and 'anarchy to the south' and adding 'at Washington the president watches and waits.'"

"Yet we must not think the task before us an easy one," he continued. "The country is still at peace and the maintenance of peace will be plausibly claimed by the democratic party. The party hopes that the country will soon forget the insults to our national honor."

Hughes was described as "his private life above suspicion; his public life without a flaw; a great lawyer; an effective campaigner and an able executive; a mature statesman; a learned jurist."

Whitman did not name Hughes until his closing words. Then followed a demonstration. Oregon, Vermont, Mississippi and Michigan began a parade. The demonstration continued for nineteen minutes.

BADLY NEED HELP.

Morgenthau Says Condition In Turkish Empire Is Pathetic.

SIGHTS WOULD BRING TEARS.

Former Ambassador Declares if Americans Could Only See Distress as He Had Seen It the Need of Aid Would Be Fully Realized—Says Only Way to Express Sympathy Is to Contribute.

New York.—Former United States Ambassador Henry Morgenthau in a recent interview gave as one of the main reasons for his resignation as ambassador to Turkey his great desire to make known to the people of the United States some of the conditions in the Turkish empire, especially as they affect the long suffering Armenians. He wants to assist in the raising of funds for Armenian relief, to explain the real conditions in Turkey and to make known in a tactful way to the Turkish authorities the thoughts of the American public on the conditions in that land.

Referring to the tragic sufferings of the Armenians and of the need of immediate help to save thousands of men, women and children from dreadful death by starvation, Mr. Morgenthau made the following statement:

"In my childhood I cried over 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' and wept at the way the negroes were sold into slavery.

HENRY MORGENTHAU.

Later on I read 'Evangeline,' and my heart went out to the poor woman and her lover, but all of these things are nothing compared to what went on in Turkey under my own eyes. I do not want to give too many harrowing pictures, but I will say that I have been requested to state that most of the stories that have reached the United States are founded on facts.

"The Armenians were living just as quietly and peacefully as possible, in friendship and close contact with their Turkish associates, when suddenly they were picked out to be deported. It was then that my heart bled for them. I had been given the privilege of dispensing charity without stint and with full authority on behalf of the English, Russian, French and Italian nations—even the Servians had sent me money, and Russia and Italy permitted me to help the poor Montenegrins in my charge. Suddenly, without available funds, I was confronted with the terrific problem of the destitute Armenians. Can you conceive how I felt? It was then that I sent an appeal to the secretary of state for help, and the response came promptly.

"If the people of the United States could only see the distress as I have seen it! If they could see the gaunt little figures of children, the little orphans brought to Constantinople by friendly Turkish officers, the need of prompt aid would be fully realized. If I dared repeat the tales I have heard, sworn to and signed, they would make men and women weep, and every one would see the need of sympathy and help.

"There is no use of accusing anybody or finding fault with any one. What this great country should do to show its appreciation of the wonderful blessings that have been showered upon us is for each one of us to make up his mind to do his share.

"We are the only people to whom they can appeal for help today, the only people who dare express their sympathy by actual giving. The people of other nations are afraid and unable to do it."

Mr. Morgenthau is a member of the American committee for Armenian and Syrian relief, of which Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Greer of the Episcopal church, Dr. James L. Barton of the American board of foreign missions, Dr. Arthur J. Brown of the Presbyterian foreign mission board, Dr. Frank Mason North of the Methodist foreign mission board and other prominent ministers and laymen, Protestant, Catholic and Jew, are members. The committee has sent $600,000 to the Armenians and native Christians in Turkey, Persia and Syria since Turkey entered the war, and it is stated that $5,000,000 will be required to save and rehabilitate these peoples.

Newcastle, Ind., June 8, 1916.—D. C. Dillman, a well known farmer who lives near Newcastle, is one of the most enthusiastic of the thousands of Indiana people who praise Tanlac, the Master Medicine. He recently said:

The neuralgia also caused me much trouble and was intensely painful. Kidney trouble caused pains in my back and sides which were especially severe in the early mornings. I also was subject to spells of dizziness and dull headaches.

"Tanlac, the Master Medicine, referred to by Mr. Dillman, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, rheumatism, nervousness, neuralgia and will relieve spells of dizziness and headaches.

stroh and the city engineer as members of the committee.

Upon consideration of the claims filed, Ahlbrand said that Allie Clark, driver of the flusher, had filed a bill for full time although he had not worked steadily on account of an injury to his hand which he said he had received while working for the city. Rockstroh said that a precedent had been established in a former case which would have to be followed now or changed. Upon his motion Clark was allowed half pay for the days he was off duty on account of the injury.

The ordinance providing that property owners shall be charged with the cost of work ordered by the city and not done by them in compliance with such order was read for the second time and referred to the board of works for revision.

The health ordinance introduced four weeks ago was indefinitely postponed on motion of Steinwedel.

The claim of A. A. Conner for $80 for alleged damage to personal property when some of his furniture was destroyed at the orders of the board of health following the quarantine of a smallpox patient at his boarding house was reconsidered. The council had previously allowed the claimant $19 for damages but this was not satisfactory. Upon motion of Rockstroh he was given $50. The councilmen thought that as the public pest house had not been completed when the patient was quarantined at the Conner rooming house the sum allowed would be right to compensate the owner for the damages.

Engineer Rights filed a report concerning the alley in Block K. This is the alley between Indianapolis avenue and Chestnut street between Second street and St. Louis avenue which received the attention of the city board of health recently. The engineer reported that the roadway for 150 feet at the west end of the alley was in good condition and that the brick for from 42 to 46 feet at the east entrance was in fair condition. He reported that about 124 feet of the alley near the center was in bad condition and that the cost of improving it would be about $228, or about $46 for each fifty feet on either side. The report was referred to the board of works and instructions were given the city attorney to prepare a resolution ordering the improvement of the central part of the alley.

Ley wanted to know what the police were doing about enforcing the dog ordinance. Chief of Police McCord replied that the officers were striving to keep the street rid of dogs but that it was impossible to catch all of them. He said that as soon as the court gives an opinion as to whether or not the ordinance is valid the police will know better just what they have authority to do. "It's embarrassing to the officers," he said, "to take up a dog and then have the owner file a replevin suit and regain possession of the dog. The sooner we get a decision on the case now in circuit court the sooner we will have better service on the enforcement of the ordinance."

Ahlbrand recommended that an electric light be placed at the corner of Chestnut street and St. Louis avenue, near the city building. The councilmen agreed with him that this is a dark corner, especially when a freight train is standing on the crossing, and the fire chief was instructed to get figures on the installing of a small light to be connected with the city building meter.

W. L. Clark was given permission to tap the Fourth street sewer at the property of J. B. Purkhiser and also to cut into Walnut street near Seventh street to repair a service pipe. The improved street is to be opened only with the consent of the contract and under the supervision of the city engineer. Ahlbrand thought that some contractors had been digging into the streets without first getting a permit from the city clerk and the police were instructed to demand the permit whenever they found a contractor digging into the street.

The congregation of the Nazarene church was given permission to use the Third Ward park from July 13 to 24 for a tent meeting.

The city clerk reported he had given instructions that no more gravel should be hauled on Seventh street at the entrance of Shields Park until instructions were given by the council.

It Would Pay To Buy Ice Now

AS a rule, people do not buy ice until they think they have to. They wait until the first real hot day of summer comes—and then they want ice instantly!

That's human nature—and of course no one stops to think that on that very same day everyone else in town also is demanding ice. People expect their sudden demand to be met promptly. They rely on the fact that—

ICE IS More than a Product—It is A SERVICE

And ice IS a service. The ice manufacturer has known it for a long time, and he does his best to meet the over-night change from NO BUSINESS to more business than he can normally handle.

Here is a suggestion: Our wagons are passing your door NOW—every day. Instead of leaving food-stuffs on pantry shelves and in windows, hoping to keep them wholesome, order a little ice TODAY and be sure! A few pennies a day NOW would serve this purpose, and also keep you OUT of the first hot day's mad rush!

Telephone just once to one of the dealers named below, and ice will be at your door daily thereafter—to take or reject at your pleasure!

Those joys so strangely short and sweet,
How they have passed me by!
What would befall if I should eat
A second piece of pie?"

"A bit of pastry now and then
I nibble half afraid.
My word among my fellow-men
Is instantly obeyed.
But I desire no tributes neat,
Nor flattery flaunted high;
I only wish that I could eat
A second piece of pie."

Tale of a Seagoing Jitney.

From the Electric Railway Journal.

The following street car story has been recently circulated: In Los Angeles an electric car met a jitney bus with disastrous results, and among the passengers who were called upon to give testimony was a "jackie" from the monitor Cheyenne. His letter to the claim agent follows: "I was standing on the starboard fore-castle of the car when the gasoline cutter hove in sight off our port bow. We were making about fifteen knots and the cutter was coming about the same along another channel. It was clear weather and not much ground swell.

"Our chief engineer blew his siren and reversed his propellers, but he couldn't leave her in time to keep from ramming her. There wasn't any time to get out the life preservers or sound the emergency call. We smashed in a couple of the little craft's compartments. Her captain stuck to his post. The jitney went down like a submarine.

"I think the cause of the wreck was that the jitney's binnacle light was out."

WASHINGTON IS AWAITING DECISION IN LIQUOR CASES

Wets Appealed from Commissioners who Give Them an Adverse Decision.

By United Press.

Washington, Ind., June 9.—This city today is once more waiting the action of the court to see whether or not it shall have saloons. The case of the saloons first was put to popular vote last March, which resulted in a tie election. Since that time appeals have been made first to the county commissioners and then into the circuit court to settle the question over the election.

Washington at the present is dry. The county commissioners decided after their recount of the ballots that the town had gone dry by a majority of nine. Consequently they refused to renew the liquor licenses of ten of the eleven saloon-keepers. The eleventh license, that of Joseph I. Gordon, did not expire until June 6th and for the past several months his saloon has been the only one that has been operating. It did a land office business until it was closed by the expiration of its license.

From the county commissioners the wets appealed to the circuit court. A change of judges was asked by the wets. This was granted and Fabius Gryn, of Shoals, Ind., was named special judge in the case. The wets then asked for a change of venue from the Daviess circuit court and the case was transferred to the Martin circuit court to be tried today.

A special committee of lawyers in the case, two representing the wets and two representing the wets, were appointed by the court and they went over the ballots, eliminating each doubtful ballot. In the trial today the court will decide on the legality of the ballots which were eliminated. This will be the only action the court will take, but will decide the election. There are one hundred and twenty-five questionable ballots. The wets have announced that they will rest on the decision of the circuit court. It has been suggested that the question be settled by allowing the saloons to be open one day and closed the next.

Investment of Advertising.

It might be well to tell you something as to what advertising really means to the manufacturer as an investment. To make an impression upon the trade, in even one state of this country, a manufacturer would be called upon to spend at least $15,000 or $20,000 in advertising.

We have many advertisers who spend more than $1,000,000 a year for general advertising, thus you will see it is a very serious and expensive question with any manufacturer, says Ben. F. Bilitier, managing editor of The Farmer's Guide.

Naturally no man would be so foolish as to risk this amount of money without absolute assurance that the goods were right. If the goods do not give satisfaction so that the customer comes back for more, then all the money spent to advertise and start a business is lost.

There is no truer gauge of quality than public opinion. If an article continues to be in popular demand it must be giving satisfaction. All the advertising in the world won't make a success of a poor article and for that reason, you can always depend upon the firm that continues to advertise the same product year after year. It must be good and their business methods all right.

Dr. J. M. Jenkins, of Cortland, gives a different version of the recent automobile accident in which his car figured than that reported. He says his car was standing on West Second street and that the other machine was backing and crashed into his machine. The Jenkins machine was not in motion when the accident took place, the owner declares.

JAMES RARIDEN (74)

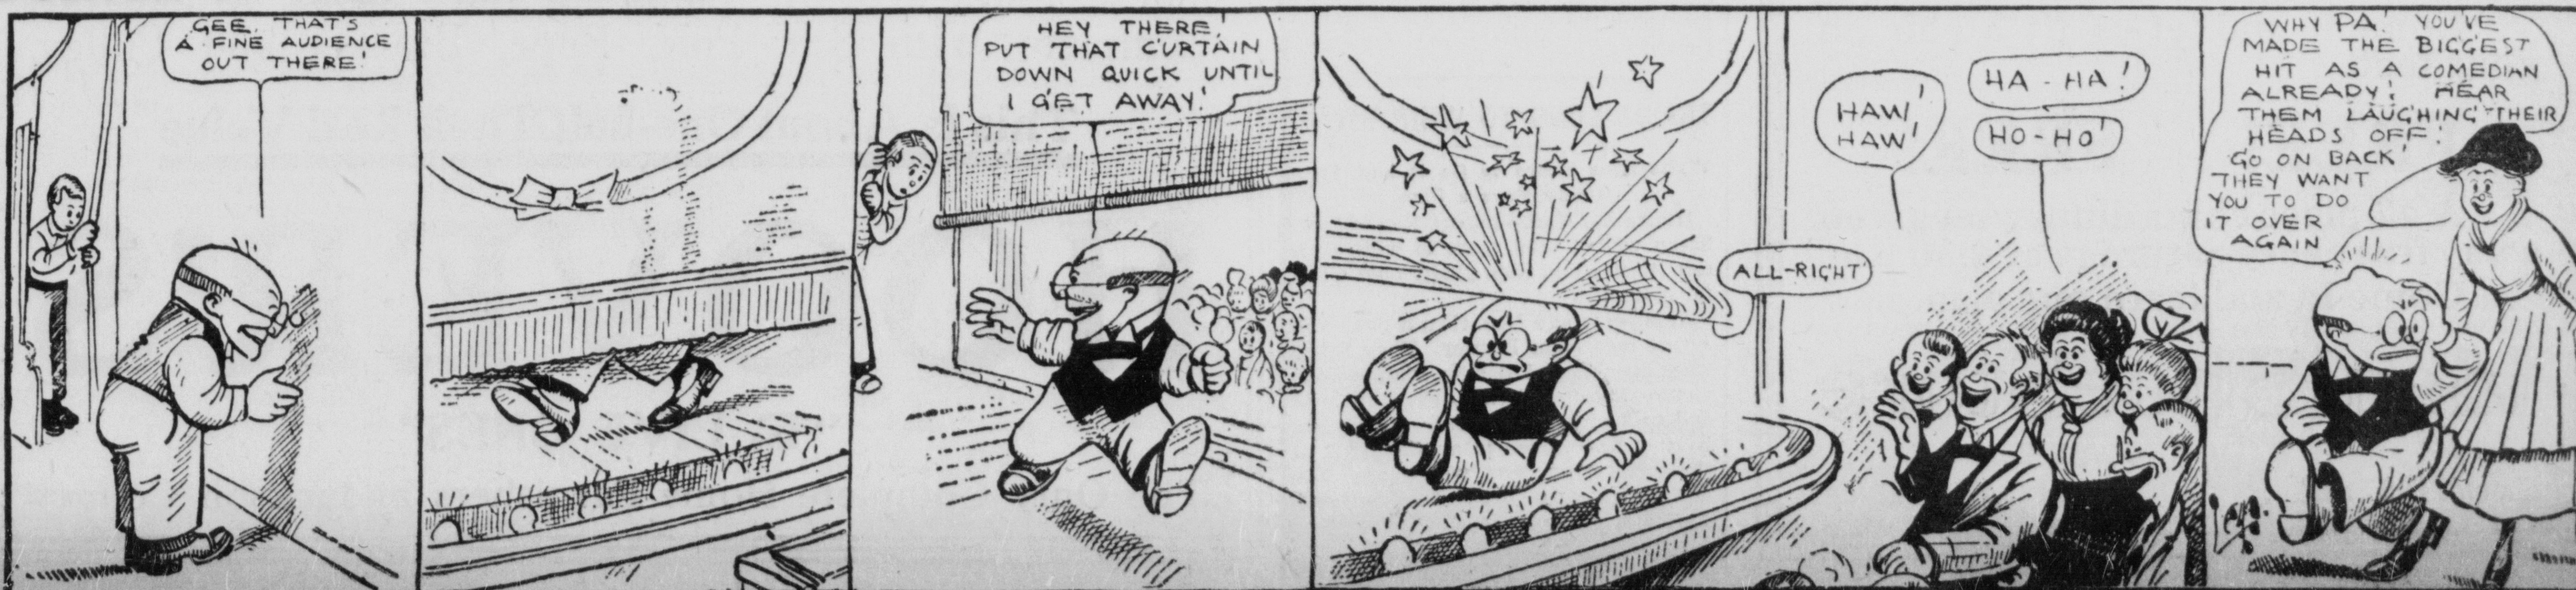

Born in Kentucky, February 14, 1795, James Rariden was transplanted early by removal of his father's family to the territory of Indiana. He represented Wayne county in the legislature soon after reaching the age of 21.

Rariden was a strong Whig in politics, a man of strong convictions and as an orator of remarkable power he was much in demand during the campaigns.

Rariden was a member of the convention that nominated Clay and entertained that statesman at his home. It was at the home of Rariden that the Quaker petition was presented to Clay, asking him to free his slaves. Rariden was a member of the constitutional convention of 1850. He died in 1856.

WOOD PLACES NAME OF
FAIRBANKS IN NOMINATION

Fairbanks was depicted as "at the zenith of his intellectual powers, possessing a ripe experience in practical statesmanship and diplomacy and peculiarly fitted at this trying time for the exalted position of President of the United States."

Wood reviewed the achievements of Indiana's "favorite son." He recalled how President McKinley chose Fairbanks as his spokesman and advisor before and during the war with Spain; how Fairbanks was the first Republican leader to sound a note of warning against free silver and how Indiana, under his leadership, was first to adopt a platform declaring for the gold standard; how Fairbanks, because of his gold standard declaration, was made temporary chairman of the convention that nominated McKinley for president. He also related that Fairbanks, four years ago, as chairman of the resolutions committee of the national convention, "presented a platform that met with the approval of everyone and which was proclaimed to be the most progressive platform ever submitted to a political convention."

Fairbanks was pictured as "intensely American," and as the "giant oak from Indiana." One "commanding reason" cited for his nomination was that Indiana, "the battle ground of the next election," has two senators to elect. "If we fail to elect two senators from Indiana the United States will remain democratic," said Wood. Wood declared that Thomas R. Marshall will be nominated at St. Louis "for the sole purpose of aiding the Democrats to carry Indiana and elect their two United States senators."

Referring to President Wilson, Wood said: "Wilson will be renominated not because a majority of the democrats want him, but because not to nominate him would be an admission of the failure of his administration."

Wood said that a great mass of the people of the United States have long wanted Fairbanks to be president. "The bullet of an assassin prevented his succeeding McKinley and the arbitrary decree of politics prevented his succeeding Roosevelt," he said. "We have reason to believe that the fates, whose purpose we cannot divine, have reserved him until now—now when we are in greater need of his services than we have been throughout the intervening years."

CONTRACTORS MUST GET
PERMIT TO DIG IN STREET

Council Hears That Ordinance Has Been Violated in Some Instances —Penalty Provided.

Despite the efforts of the city council to enforce the ordinance requiring contractors and others who have occasion to dig into the streets for gas, water and sewerage connections to first obtain a permit from the city clerk, the regulations have been violated, according to the reports reaching the city officials. The council recently determined to enforce this ordinance as a means of protecting the improved streets and to prevent damage to public sewers. During the last few years the city has been burdened with considerable expense in repairing sewers which were damaged by contractors who tapped them for connections for dwellings.

The contractors who built the improved streets gave bond to maintain the streets in good repair for a period of five years after they were completed and accepted by the city and before a contractor has a right to break the surface of any improved street still within the period of maintenance he must first secure permission from the builder of the street as well as from the city clerk.

Police officers have been instructed to watch such improvements and to demand that any contractor digging into the streets show his permit. A penalty is provided for failure to comply with the ordinance.

LAYS SIX EGGS AT ONE CACKLE

Connecticut Hen Has Busy Birthday.
Rooster Acts as Cop.

Hartford, Conn.—A hen and a rooster near here have joined the "super chicken" class. In Willington a White Leghorn hen celebrated her birthday by laying six eggs at one cackle. After she stopped laying recently an agricultural college student performed an operation on her, which was more than successful.

A dangerous "blind" bridge at Bolch Notch was guarded by a rooster. The fowl, which is called Speaker by his owner, Mrs. Minnie Howard, because of his parliamentary qualities, did traffic cop duty all afternoon, warning automobiles to slow down before crossing the rickety structure.

NEW USE FOR OLD GLORY.

In a Brooklyn Court It "Protects the Bench."

New York.—After an adjournment of the Brooklyn court of special sessions recently the bench and clerk's desk were bedecked with an American flag. "What's the idea?" Chief Probation Officer John J. Rooney was asked. "That's the duster," Rooney explained. "When the janitor sweeps he covers the bench and clerk's desk with the old flag."

Indignant, the questioner sought out Chief Clerk Joseph L. Kerrigan and demanded an explanation of the apparent desecration of Old Glory.

"Well, isn't the flag protecting the bench?" was Kerrigan's ready response.

GETS EGG DURING TRIAL.

Hen Labeled "Exhibit A" Lays It in Court, and the Judge Benefits.

Portland, Ore.—Maude, a White Leghorn hen, was in District Judge Bell's court as Exhibit A in a suit over her ownership and that of two other Biddies and a cockerel. Suddenly there smote the air a shrill "cut-a-cut." It was Maude cackling, and she kept it up. "Bailliff, kindly remove the exhibit," ordered the judge. The bailiff approached Maude's coop. "Your honor," he shouted, "look!" and held up a snowy white egg. "Maude has laid it."

Both litigants agreed that the judge should receive the egg, and he did.

DRINKERS SENT TO FRONT.

France Adopts Plan to Keep Temptation From Munition Workers.

Paris.—On account of a diminution of the output of munitions, due to excessive drinking, Minister of Munitions Albert Thomas recently issued instructions that any munition workers found under the influence of alcohol shall be immediately sent to the fighting line.

The explanation is given that the penalty is not in the nature of a punishment, but because the man in question is unlikely to experience the same temptations at the front.

First Bath In Twenty Years.

Charlestown, Ind.—After being given the first bath he has had in twenty years, according to his own admission, D. W. Hodson, who presented himself at the county farm for the poor, near here, suddenly disappeared. The mystery of his absence was solved when he showed up at his old home at Underwood, Ind., and told of the vigorous scrubbing the farm attendants administered.

TRAINS LONG TO WHIP RIVAL.

Waits Nine Years to Do It and Then Gladly Pays a Fine.

Hiawatha, Kan.—Robert Noe of Powhatan waited nine years to whip Garrett Bartley and then gladly paid a fine for doing it.

Nine years ago Noe, then a boy, won a foot race from Bartley. They afterward fought, and Bartley whipped the victor. Noe promised to even up later and trained for the event. Meanwhile Bartley had moved to another part of the county. A few weeks ago Noe moved into the same neighborhood. The first time he met Bartley they fought.

Goldenflo solves the coffee problem for you

Your physician tells you to stop drinking coffee—that it contains harmful drugs, liable to injure your family's health, but as yet you haven't found a harmless beverage that really tastes like coffee. Goldenflo, the new food drink, changes all this.

Drink Goldenflo as freely as you choose

It can't harm you—because it contains no tannin or caffeine. Made properly it tastes, and looks just like a high-grade Mocha and Java blend. Goldenflo satisfies. Expert judges of coffee relish it. You'll find it an economical and gratifying substitute for coffee that the entire family can drink, morning, noon and night.

COFFEE FLAVOR—MINUS COFFEE DRUGS

That's the whole story of Goldenflo success. Prove it in your own home. Serve it at your next meal. Order your package now.

WOMEN'S STOMACH TROUBLES

The Great Woman's Medicine Often Just What Is Needed.

We are so used to thinking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy exclusively for female ills that we are apt to overlook the fact that it is one of the best remedies for disorders of the stomach.

For stomach trouble of women it is especially adapted, as it works in complete harmony with the female organism, since it contains the extracts of the best tonic roots and herbs. It tones up the digestive system, and increases the appetite and strength. Here is what one woman writes showing what this medicine does:—

Newfield, N. Y.—"I am so pleased to say I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as an economical and beneficial remedy in most ailments pertaining to women. At least I found it so by only taking two bottles. I had indigestion in a bad form and I am now feeling in the best of health and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BURR WILLIAMS, R. D. No. 29, Newfield, N. Y.

Many women suffer from that "all gone feeling," and "feel so faint," while doing their work. Ten chances to one their digestive system is all out of order. A tablespoonful of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after each meal should completely remedy this condition in a few days.

CHAPTER VIII.

I Defy Cassion.

Our progress was slow against the swift current of the St. Lawrence, and we kept close to the overhanging bank, following the guidance of the leading canoe. We were the second in line, and no longer overcrowded, so that I had ample room to rest at ease upon a pile of blankets, and gaze about me with interest on the changing scene.

Ahead of us, now sweeping around the point like a wild bird, amid a smother of spray, appeared the advance canoe. As it disappeared I could distinguish D'Artigny at the stern, his coat off, his hands grasping a paddle. Above the point once more and in smoother water, I was aware that he turned and looked back, shading his eyes from the sun. I could not but wonder what he thought, what possible suspicion had come to him, regarding my presence in the company. In some manner I must keep him away from Cassion—ay, and from Chevet—until opportunity came from me to first communicate with him.

Insensibly my head rested back against the pile of blankets, the glint of sunshine along the surface of the water vanished as my lashes fell, and, before I knew it, I slept soundly. I awoke with the sun in the western sky, so low down as to peep at me through the upper branches of trees lining the bank. Behind us stretched a space of straight water, and one canoe was close, while the second was barely visible along a curve of the shore. Ahead, however, the river appeared vacant, the leading boat having vanished around a wooded bend. My eyes met those of Cassion, and the sight of him instantly restored me to a recollection of my plan—nothing could be gained by open warfare. I permitted my lips to smile, and noted instantly the change of expression in his face.

"I have slept well, monsieur," I said pleasantly, "for I was very tired."

"'Tis the best way on a boat voyage," assuming his old manner, "but now the day is nearly done."

As we skirted the extremity of shore I saw the opening in the woods, and the gleam of a cheerful fire amid green grass. The advance canoe swung half hidden amid the overhanging roots of a huge pine tree, and the men were busily at work ashore. As we nosed into the bank, our sharp bow was grasped by waiting Indians and drawn safely ashore. I reached my feet, stiffened, and scarcely able to move my limbs, but determined to land without aid of Cassion, whose passage forward was blocked by Chevet's huge bulk. As my weight rested on the edge of the canoe, D'Artigny swung down from behind the chief, and extended his hand.

"A slight spring," he said, "and you land with few feet; good! now let me lift you—so."

I had but the instant; I knew that, for I heard Cassion cry out something just behind me, and, surprised as I was by the sudden appearance of D'Artigny, I yet realized the necessity for swift speech.

"Monsieur," I whispered, "Do not talk, but listen. You would serve me?"

"Ay!"

"Then ask nothing, and above all do not quarrel with Cassion. I will tell you everything the moment I can see you safely alone. Until then do not seek me. I have your word?"

He did not answer, for the commissaire grasped my arm, and thrust himself in between us, his action so swift that the impact of his body thrust D'Artigny back a step. I saw the hand of the younger man close on the knife hilt at his belt, but was quick enough to avert the hot words burning his lips.

"A bit rough, Monsieur Cassion," I cried, laughing merrily, even as I released my arm. "Why so much haste? I was near falling, and it was but courtesy which led the Sieur d'Artigny to extend me his hand. It does not please me for you to be ever seeking a quarrel."

There must have been that in my face which cooled him, for his hand fell, and his thin lips curled into sarcastic smile.

"If I seemed hasty," he exclaimed, "it was more because I was blocked by that boor of a Chevet yonder, and it angered me to have this young gamecock ever at hand to push in. What think you you were employed for, fellow—an esquire of dames? Was there not work enough in the camp yonder, that you must be testing your fancy graces every time a boat lands?"

There was no mild look in D'Artigny's eyes as he fronted him, yet he held his temper, recalling my plea, no doubt, and I hastened to step between and furnish him excuse for silence.

"Surely you do wrong to blame the young man, monsieur, as but for his aid I would have slipped yonder. There is no cause for hard words, nor do I thank you for making me a subject of quarrel. Is it my tent they erect yonder?"

"Ay," there was little graciousness to the tone, for the man had the nature of a bully. "Twas my thought that it be brought for your use; and if Monsieur d'Artigny will consent to stand aside, it will give me pleasure to escort you thither."

The younger man's eyes glanced from the other's face into mine, as though seeking reassurance. His hat was instantly in his hand, and he stepped backward, bowing low.

"The wish of the lady is sufficient," he said quietly, and then stood again erect, facing Cassion. "Yet," he added slowly, "I would remind monsieur that while I serve him as a guide, it is as a volunteer, and I am also an officer of France."

"Of France? Pah! of the renegade La Salle."

"France has no more loyal servant, Monsieur Cassion, in all this western land—nor is he renegade, for he holds the Illinois at the king's command."

"Held it—yes; under Frontenac, but not now."

"We will not quarrel over words, yet not even in Quebec was it claimed that higher authority than La Barre's had led to recall. Louis had never interfered, and it is De Tonty, and not De Baugis who is in command at St. Louis by royal order. My right to respect of rank is clearer than your own, monsieur, so I beg you curb your temper."

"You threaten me?"

"No; we who live in the wilderness do not talk, we act. I obey your orders, do your will, on this expedition, but as a man, not a slave. In all else we stand equal, and I accept insult from no living man. 'Tis well that you know this, monsieur."

The hat was back upon his head, and he had turned away before Cassion found answering speech.

"Mon Dieu! I'll show the pup who is the master," he muttered. "Let him disobey once, and I'll stretch his dainty form as I would an Indian cur."

"Monsieur," I said, drawing his attention to my presence. "'Tis of no interest to me your silly quarrel with Sieur d'Artigny. I am weary with the boat journey, and would rest until food is served."

I walked beside him among the trees, and across the patch of grass to where the tent stood against a background of rock. D'Artigny had disappeared, although I glanced about in search for him, as Cassion drew aside the tent flap, and peered within. He appeared pleased at the way in which his orders had been executed.

"'Tis very neat, indeed, monsieur," I said pleasantly, glancing inside. "I owe you my thanks."

"Twas brought for my own use," he confessed, encouraged by my graciousness, "for, as you know, I had no previous warning that you were to be of our party. Please step within."

I did so, yet turned instantly to prevent his following me. Already I had determined on my course of action, and now the time had come for me to speak him clearly; yet now that I had definite purpose in view it was no part of my game to anger the man.

"Monsieur," I said soberly, "I must beg your mercy. I am but a girl, and alone. It is true I am your wife by law, but the change has come so suddenly that I am ret dazed. I appeal

Sunday School Lesson

June 11 (Second Quarter) Lesson 11

SOWING AND REAPING (Temperance Lesson.)

GOLDEN TEXT:—God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. Gal. 6:7.

As there is a prominent and all important line of truth running through both the lessons for today, we will consider both, and the heart of both seems to me to be the Spirit controlled life for those who are truly redeemed. We were recently studying a lesson concerning a long journey and a great council, all because of circumcision, and now we read that "In Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything nor uncircumcision, but a new creature" (Gal. vi, 15). The one essential thing is to be "in Christ Jesus," the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me; who hath redeemed me from the curse of the law, being made a curse for me; who gave Himself for my sins that He might deliver me from the present evil world (Gal. ii, 20; iii, 13; i, 4). Then the words of Gal. vi, 14, should be ours and the daily life be a manifest standing fast in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, the "not I but Christ" life, the world crucified to us and we to the world (v, 1; ii, 20).

Because of the flesh, or old sinful nature, that remains in every believer there is a constant conflict, but the Holy Spirit who dwelleth in the believer will keep him from doing the things which the flesh would prompt him to do (v, 17). As believers we must earnestly desire to walk in the Spirit, be led of the Spirit, live in the Spirit, and thus manifest the fruit of the Spirit, to the glory of God (v, 16, 18, 22, 25). There is a sowing and a reaping in every life, and it is either the old life or the new, the flesh or the Spirit, resulting in loss or gain (vi, 8). We will surely reap what we sow, and the harvest may be large for good or evil (Hosea vii, 7; x, 12, 13; Prov. xxii, 8). May our aim always be to gather fruit into life eternal and never faint or grow weary, but go on in patient continuance, for the reaping time will surely come (Gal. vi, 9; John iv, 36-38; Rom. ii, 7; I Cor. xv, 58).

Turning to the lesson in Corinthians, the truths are just the same. Believers are by the grace of God sanctified in Christ Jesus, called saints, and in Christ Jesus have wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption, so that there is no one and no thing worth knowing compared with Jesus Christ and Him crucified (I Cor. i, 2-4, 29-31; ii, 2). We have here, as in the other lesson in Galatians, the flesh and the Spirit, or the wisdom of this world and Jesus Christ, who is the power of God, and the wisdom of God, and they are always contrary, the one to the other (I Cor. i, 21, 24). Paul knew much of the wisdom of this world, being brought up at the feet of Gamaliel, but he set aside all the wisdom of men that he might know the wisdom of God (I Cor. ii, 4, 5).

We remember that Moses, being learned in all the wisdom of the Egyptians, had to keep sheep for forty years in the school of God that he might know the wisdom of God. The wisdom of Egypt could not interpret the dreams of Pharaoh, but the wisdom of God in Joseph easily could and did. All the wisdom of Babylon could not tell the king what he had dreamed, nor the meaning of his dreams, nor interpret the handwriting on the wall, but the wisdom of God in Daniel easily did all. The wisdom of this world never has been able to and cannot now interpret the things of God, for the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God (I Cor. ii, 11). Human scholarship, however great, unless under the control of the Spirit of God, is wholly unable to understand the things of God.

The greatest scholar that earth can produce, unless born again, is simply a natural man, and to him the things of God are only foolishness (I Cor. ii, 14), but the most unlearned and ignorant in the things of this world's wisdom may by the Spirit of God know the things of God. The wise men in the time of our Lord spoke of Him as having never learned, and they called Peter and John unlearned and ignorant men (John vii, 15; Acts iv, 13), so those who may be despised by the world's scholarship should find comfort in this. While we wait for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ we are called into fellowship with Him (I Cor. i, 7, 9), and this is part of the fellowship—to be counted unlearned and ignorant because we take the Bible literally, believe it all, and that God means what He says, and if the plain, obvious sense makes good sense we need seek no other sense.

We have received the Spirit of God that we may know the things that are freely given us of God, which neither eye nor ear nor heart of man hath seen or heard or imagined, and thus be able in the power of an endless life to endure patiently till He come (I Cor. ii, 9-12). Compare Isa. lxiv, 4, from which part of this is quoted and note the revised version. In connection with the sowing and reaping of Gal. vi, note the building of I Cor. iii, 9-15, and the possibility of great loss even though the soul may be saved. Salvation can only be obtained as a free gift from God, apart from any works or effort on our part. But being saved there are good works prepared for us to walk in (Eph. ii, 8-10). There are no degrees in salvation, but much difference in service and rewards.

TOOK CLOTHES FOR DEBT.

Because He Couldn't Collect $3 He Seized Four Suits.

Indianapolis.—William Devine, a farm laborer, explained in the criminal court that, being unable to collect $3 from James Boyce, living near Flackville, he took four suits of clothes as payment. He admitted he was generous to himself, for the suits were of excellent quality and appearance.

"First I put on one suit," he said, "and then I thought how much better it looked on me than it did on Boyce, so I took the others."

With the disappearance of his suits and Devine, Boyce came before the grand jury and an indictment was returned against the farm laborer. Boyce paid $18 to find and return Devine to the city to face the larceny charge. Devine went to Madison, Ind., after taking the suits.

Judge Collins sentenced Devine to the penal farm for ninety days.

Jury Completed in Orpet Case.

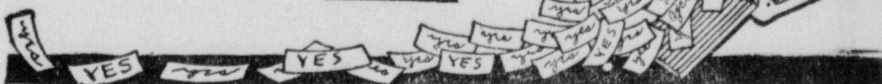

Waukegan, Ill., June 8.—A jury in the case of William H. Orpet, Wisconsin university youth, charged with the murder of Marian Lambert, his high school sweetheart, was completed when the state accepted Edward Fabry, Lake Forest, as the twelfth juror. The jury then was sworn in.

We put it up to Hundreds of Dentists

Long before SENRECO was offered to you we submitted it to hundreds of dentists, requesting that they put it to every test. Told them that we believed Senreco to be an unusually good dentifrice, especially as to its cleansing qualities and its remedial action on sore, soft, bleeding gums; in the treatment of Pyorrhea, etc. Submitted the formula and asked them their opinion. They tested Senreco from every angle; some going even so far as to make a chemical analysis—

And They Voted Yes

With practically one accord—said:

"Senreco appeals to me more than any dentifrice I have ever seen." "I cannot say too much for Senreco. It's one of the best I have used." "I can recommend Senreco as the best." "Makes the teeth glister and is free from injurious ingredients, including pumice and grit." "I am indeed glad to get a tooth paste that does the work." "Congratulate you on formulating a dentifrice that gives one a new idea of mouth cleanliness, etc." (These quotations are from the dentists' reports. Originals on file at our office.)

With such endorsements from the men who know; why not go to your dealer today and get a tube of SENRECO—25c. Keep your teeth REALLY CLEAN, and protect yourself against Pyorrhea and decay.

A copy of the folder, "The Most General Disease in the World" together with a liberal trial size tube of SENRECO will be mailed you for 4c in stamps. The Sentinel Remedies Co., Inc. Dept. B, Masonic Temple, Cincinnati, Ohio.

BURGLAR KEPT MONEY.

Woman's Last Word About Funds in the Bank Brought Decision.

Kansas City, Mo.—He was polite, even suave, as he unlocked the door and entered the room occupied by Mrs. William Buchanan of 1516 Locust street the other day. He closed the door so quietly and had such a gentlemanly manner that Mrs. Buchanan was too much surprised to scream. The intruder took her pocketbook, containing nearly $3, from the dresser. Then Mrs. Buchanan protested.

"Please don't take my money. It's all I have," she pleaded.

"But I understood you had lots of money," replied he, holding the cash in his hand. "But if this is all you have I'll return it."

"But I have more than that," she insisted, "It's in the bank, but as I don't feel very well goodness knows when I shall be able to get more," she continued. The intruder hesitated, smiled and then took the money. Mrs. Buchanan then called the police.

"I'M SO FOND OF MUSIC!"

That Explains What Maid Does With an Advance of Wages.

Chicago.—For a few days a young north shore matron believed she had solved the servant girl problem. Her first girl found the country life too slow and returned home "back of the yards."

This experience afforded an inspiration, and she imported a girl from her former home at Galesburg. Kindly treatment was to be the keynote of success, so when she discovered the new maid lacked underwear she armed her with a dollar and shopping instructions.

In thirty minutes the girl was back, but minus the underwear. In its place she had purchased a mouth organ costing 49 cents, which she exhibited proudly to her mistress with the remark:

"I'm so fond of music."

KRAFT STORE TO OBSERVE ITS FOURTH ANNIVERSARY

Penny Register to Count Visitors to Store During Special Anniversary Sale All Next Week.

Next week will mark the fourth anniversary of the George Kraft Company 5 and 10 cent store in Seymour, and the manager, E. C. McMullen, has arranged an all-week anniversary sale to mark the event. Special bargains will be offered each day during the week, and an accurate count made of the number of customers who enter the store, and of the number of sales.

The local Kraft store is one of the leading stores in the Kraft chain in cities of this size, and frequently tops the list in amount of sales. Next week is expected to set a new record both in number of sales and in the number of people who enter the store. A girl stationed at the door will drop a penny in a glass jar for every person entering the store. Mr. McMullen took charge of the Kraft store in January, succeeding C. J. Morrison, who was transferred to one of the Chicago stores, and has demonstrated his ability as a business man and manager.

UNDERSEA BOATS IN DEFENSE PLAN

Torpedo With Range of Twenty Miles Is Possible.

EXPERTS LIKE THE SCHEME

Chicago Man Says That It Is Practicable—Would Have Caissons Four Miles Apart on Both Coasts—Atmosphere Now Affects Wireless Phone and Torpedoes.

High speed torpedoes with an effective range of more than twenty miles, with submarine structures in constant electrical connection with stations on the shore and warships a short distance out—this, in skeleton, is a program said to be under consideration by our military and naval authorities. There are so many of these devices which to the ordinary man seem impossible that this plan was taken to a prominent Chicago authority on electrical matters with the question:

"Is there anything absurd on the face of this?" He gave a negative answer, seemingly holding it as something theoretically possible and likely capable of practical demonstration.

The plan calls for a line of defense up and down the Atlantic and Pacific coasts in the form of submarine caissons constructed of re-enforced concrete, located a few hundred feet from the shore and connected with land by tunnels, these caissons to be about five miles apart and connected by telephone and wireless with a central point at Washington through subcentral stations located inland. These subcentral stations would be in constant communication with the patrol fleet of battleships and also with the aeroplanes which the Aero Club of America is proposing for our coast and borders.

Torpedo of Greatest Power.

The new weapon said to be used in this system and to have been devised by a superintendent of one of the plants of the Crucible Steel company is a torpedo of greater range and power than anything of the sort now in use. This weapon would be supplied to the caissons, which would have periscopes and all necessary electrical equipment. The structures would need only three men for operation. It has been estimated that 5,000 miles of our coast would call for this kind of protection. This would make the construction of 1,000 of these caissons necessary, and each would be equipped with ten torpedoes, the cost of which would be $10,000 each.

Conceivably this would be a perfect protection for our coast if the system were extended. It is only a question of practicability, and that is to be demonstrated. When one remembers the many marvelous things that have been done in electrical science and the arts collateral thereto he cannot afford to dismiss such a thing as this as an extravagant creation of the fancy. The world laughed at Darius Green and his flying machine. The world now bestows unstinted admiration on the aeroplane.

It is generally found that new devices which rouse great expectations in their earlier stages disappoint to a certain extent when they come into use. The comments of certain authorities on these modern contrivances are highly instructive. One of them says that the wireless telegraph is extremely subject to changes in wind and weather and that for the present its usefulness is limited. Operators who want to talk over a distance of many hundred miles try and try again without success and then have to wait until the atmosphere gives them a good chance.

Atmosphere Affects Wireless Phone.

The wireless telephone is much more sensitive to atmospheric conditions than the wireless telegraph. Nevertheless the authority says the wireless telephone will be useful in the case of vessels fifty or a hundred miles from shore. It is quite conceivable that the equipment can be so changed as to neutralize unfavorable conditions in a degree. The telephone has long been used on board vessels as a means of hearing what is going on under the surface of the water—for example, the wash against dangerous rocks.

One of the experts was asked as to the recent report that German operators of submarines could direct their torpedoes by hearing instead of sight and that presently the periscope will become unnecessary. This, he said, was theoretically correct, but making a good hit would be a chance—in other words, that method has not been perfected to the point of efficiency. The British, he said, had long been able to locate submarines by sound. The question appears to be whether they will ever be able to locate them so accurately as to hit them with a torpedo. The American may congratulate himself that his countrymen are as capable in the line of invention as any class of people in the world and that therefore we are in a position to protect ourselves against the most expert. It is only a question of such support by the government as to bring this ingenuity into use. Most of our military and naval devices have been taken up by other nations and perfected.

Habitual.

"Who is it this time?" the marriage license clerk at College Point asked Anton Hofinger. It's Hofinger's fifth. He's seventy-two.
